FROM THE RABBI'S STUDY

David Wirschafter

It's been the kind of year in which Purim couldn't come too soon. The heartbreaking violence in Louisville and Pittsburgh, the ongoing crisis at the southern border, the exasperating government shutdown; need one go on? Purim is a celebration of at least two intertwined Jewish priorities: survival and the critical importance of working together. It is only through the efforts of those inside and outside the palace, the named and unnamed Jews of Shushan, that the day and their very existence are saved.

It is was the willingness to work together that made last year's communitywide Purim celebration a rousing success. The turnout was so strong that we had to run out to get more bourbon and pizza. The Hamantashen-Latke Debate was brilliantly funny, and the Megillah reading was so raucous that even King Achashverosh would have been impressed.

This year the tradition of partnering with Ohavay Zion Synagogue, The

FROM THE PRESIDENT'S DESK

Deborah Nelson

Looking Over and Up

Last month I joined more than 35 other temple presidents for the Scheidt Leadership Seminar offered by the Union for Reform Judaism. Rabbi Rick Jacobs and the excellent URH staff led us in workshops, study and worship, and the presidents learned from one another. I returned inspired by the world of possibilities and very grateful for the congregation we have.

Some highlights:

1. The URJ provides a wealth of resources specifically designed for Reform congregations, and the staff includes experts in every aspect of congregational life. In the next year or so, I hope these experts will guide us in a congregational benchmarking process that will involve all of you and help us compare ourselves to others on important indicators of congregational health.

2. Rabbi Jacobs has a warm, funny and accepting presence, but he is also a tough and tenacious advocate when it comes to supporting Israel, and advocating for the pluralistic and egalitarian values of Reform Judaism. I aspire personally to learn more.

3. Other presidents could not believe how much TAI does with the resources we have. For this we must thank our paid staff for wearing many hats and a team of extraordinarily dedicated volunteers. Compared to similarly sized congregations, our budget is very, very lean. We have heard this before, but it really is true

4. Jews derive great satisfaction from philanthropically supporting their temples. This statement caused some nervous laughter among the presidents with me at the seminar, "Developing a Culture of Philanthropy," but I see this satisfaction in our congregation. If you would like to learn more about how our congregation is supported through philanthropy, please contact Rabbi Wirschafter or me, and we will connect you with lay leaders who can help.

5. Congregations are experimenting with many different ways to engage congregants on Shabbat, such as varying worship/music styles, food and themes.

6. Shir Adat is very likely the nation's premier Reform Jewish choir. How do I know? When I introduced myself and said as much several times, nobody argued otherwise. I suggest all of you do the same on your travels. This should be pretty much confirmed in the next year or so.

7. There's no place like home. While I thoroughly enjoyed learning from and worshiping with national leaders, my mind returned many times to our wonderful rabbi, our many sacred partners and to all of you. I came back to Lexington full of gratitude for what we have and honored to be your president.

My attendance at the workshop was made possible in part by funds available through the Arthur and Marilyn Lieber Board Leadership Fund. Thank you, Marilyn and Art, for your support and for encouraging board members to look to the stars. For all of you who have skills, talent or enthusiasm to contribute to the temple board, please consider getting involved in 2020, when we will have positions available on the board again. It's gratifying work.

With gratitude,
Deb

Jade plants for new temple members now come in an assortment of colorful pots, thanks to the artistry of Religious School students.

Religious School students decorate pots for jade-plant cuttings

New TAI members are getting a little something extra in their welcome baskets.

Jade plants, grown from cuttings from the large plant in the office hallway, now come in colorful clay pots that are hand-painted by students in Religious School. At the suggestion of Dennis Hessel, co-chair of the garden committee, and under the guidance of Religious School art teacher Jo Stone, eighth-graders are teaming with younger students to decorate the pots.

According to temple lore, the original two jade plants were brought to TAI in the 1960's or '70s by long-time member Edie Frankel (1907-2007). In 2018, the original plants were cleaned, trimmed and repotted through the efforts of Claudia Michler of Michler Florists.

The Membership Committee, chaired by Lowell Nigoff and Pat Shraberg, oversees the plant give-away. The group plans to extend the effort to shut-ins and those in need.

Lexington Havurah, B'nai B'rith, UK Hillel and Jewish Federation of the Bluegrass continues on March 20 (see schedule, right). The only thing that's different about this Purim celebration is that we aren't the ones hosting it. The same volunteers who are doing too much already might actually get a break. But the fact that OZS is hosting this year does NOT constitute an excuse not to attend. On the contrary, it should inspire us to participate in even greater numbers because we won't be the ones ordering the pizza or schlepping the bourbon. Seriously, just because we aren't hosting Purim doesn't mean we aren't sponsoring it. Celebrating the holiday is a mitzvah whether it's at our place or not. Indeed, part of Purim is about relaxing our need for control and trying something different.

On sad occasions such as funerals, shiva minyans or responding to hate crimes, we comfort one another with the words: "Next time on a simcha." When we see each other next may it be for a happier purpose. In the midst of a trying year, Purim provides an opportunity to fulfill that promise. Even though the occasion was horrible, it was good to gather together as Jews, surrounded by our caring neighbors to acknowledge the senseless violence that took place in Louisville and Pittsburgh last fall. Now we can gather with good friends on a happy occasion for a festive purpose. The place doesn't matter. 613 mitzvot that unite us far outweigh 3.6 miles that separate us.

On Oct. 31 we joined together to weep for lives that were taken senselessly. On Wednesday March 21, let us join together to rejoice in lives that were saved miraculously. As the Book of Esther teaches: It was a time of light and

FROM TAI PRESCHOOL

Katherine
Henry,
Director

We have many exciting things to learn about in March. We will begin with talking about zoos and the many animals they might see if they visit a zoo. We also will be learning about spring and bugs. We hope the weather will be warmer so we can go outside and explore nature. We will discuss the changes that are occurring outside when the seasons change. We will also be on the lookout for bugs!

We also will spend a week discussing the Jewish holiday of Purim and will end the month with beach fun. We will read many stories about all of these topics and make lots of crafts.

Our enrollment for next year is still in progress. Please spread the word to anyone you know who has preschool-age children. We enroll children ages 18 months to 5 years old. I would be happy to answer any questions about our program or give tours of the preschool. Our hours are 8:30 to 11:30 a.m., and we offer extended day on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Thank you for all that you do for the preschool!

FROM THE RELIGIOUS SCHOOL

Kristen Hoffman and Jori Sussman, Co-Directors

As cold temperatures covered the Bluegrass, TAI Religious School students stayed warm and had fun at a variety of events last month.

On Feb. 2, TAI partnered with OZS and PJ Library to host a very successful Pajama Havdalah program. Kids in grades PK-3 came together to learn about havdalah through story time, music, crafts and food. Thank you to Ilona Szekely and Jori Sussman for their partnership – everyone seemed to really enjoy themselves.

On Feb. 10, families gathered after Religious School and enjoyed the food and conversation at TAI on Rye, the Temple's New York-style pop-up deli. And, after a break for Presidents Day, Becca Leaman from the Institute of Southern Jewish Life joined us the weekend of Feb. 22 for Tot Shabbat, family service and Religious School.

TAI's Purim Carnival will be March 17 after Religious School. Kids of all ages are welcome to dress up in costume and enjoy this fun annual event. This month's Tot Shabbat and family service will be Friday, March 22. Tot Shabbat will begin at 5:30 p.m. in the library and is geared towards children up to 6 years old. A complimentary family dinner will be at 6 in the social hall. The family service, which utilizes the children's prayer book and is geared toward students in grades K-6, will begin at 7 in the sanctuary. Fifth-graders will be participating in the service, and their families will host the oneg. Please RSVP to kristen@lextai.org. We hope you can join us!

Thank you for your continued support. Please contact Kristen (773-425-2005 or kristen@lextai.org) or Jori (jori@lextai.org) if you have any questions about Religious School.

An evening of trivial pursuits

Trivia Night at TAI on Feb. 16 was a big hit. Participants enjoyed a great meal, then got down to business: two rounds of team trivia. Each table constituted a team, and the same team won both rounds. Team members included Dan Isenstein; Mark, Laura and Danit Schachman; and Mandy Shramm.

FROM SISTERHOOD

Elissa Weinstein
President

Shalom, Sisters! It's hard to believe that spring is knocking on our door. In Judaism, as you know, we have an abundance of springtime holidays. It begins with celebrating Purim and generally concludes with the celebration of Yom Ha'atzmaut (Israel Independence Day). Even with the mild winter that we've experienced, I'm ready to move on to sunnier days and sunny celebrations!

Just a couple of weeks ago, a group of us gathered in the Temple library to socialize and make fleece blankets for a very worthy cause. It was so great getting together with these women. There were yummy snacks, and I'd say that we all left with some new skills as well. Who knew that blanket-making could be so easy and fun?

This month we are planning an afternoon of socializing and playing games on Sunday, March 10, from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. There will be delicious snacks and several games to choose from, including mah-jong and Mexican Train. Please check your inboxes for an Evite to this program.

March is also Mitzvah Crib month for Sisterhood. Faith Erdmann is coordinating this program and has picked Sunday, March 17, for our annual "baby shower." Keep an eye out for more information about this month of service.

In April our group will be doing some volunteering with an organization called Sweet Blessings. They make, decorate and provide birthday cakes for underprivileged children. We are beyond excited to partner with this group and have a memorable experience. Also please mark your calendars for Friday, May 3. This will be our annual Sisterhood Shabbat service. We would love to welcome Shabbat with as many of our Sisters as possible!

If you are interested in becoming involved with Sisterhood, please don't hesitate to contact me at 263-1859 or taisisterhoodpresident@gmail.com.

B'shalom,
Elissa

FUND FACTS

Over the years TAI congregants have established funds to support specific programs or for specific purposes. Each month, FUND FACTS will present a snapshot of a fund to familiarize congregants with TAI's resources.

Dr. Richard Greenberg established the Victoria Greenberg Rabbinical Intern Endowed Fund in 2011 in memory of his wife. Victoria Greenberg, who held a doctorate in microbiology and immunology from UK, was engaged in cancer and protein research there. Richard Greenberg, an infectious disease specialist at UK, designated the money to provide financial support for rabbinical interns to assist at TAI and gain practical experience. Since the fund's creation, two rabbinical students from Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati have interned at TAI.

At the end of December 2018, the Victoria Greenberg Fund contained $29,033 in principal and accumulated interest. The terms of this endowed fund permit spending principal and accumulated interest for the purposes stated, even to the extent that the fund might be depleted.
